DISEASE AND POVERTY.

The normal person will not sink into poverty. Illness, disease, deformity and weak-mindedness are subnormal. David Starr Jordan says: "Strong men seek education and make opportunity," and to this might be appropriately added, "They bring things about; they make events occur." Weak men are the opposite of this, says Dr. J. N. Hurty in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Disease is itself not an evidence of physical or mental strength. "Syphilis" is a great cause of poverty, as it is also of insanity. "We were getting along splendidly," said the poverty stricken woman, "until my husband took consumption." And who must be told of the great poverty that trails consumption? A farmer died of typhoid fever when the mortgage, given in part payment for his farm, was only one-half paid off. His wife and little daughter took the disease and survived only finally to fill fuller the slums of a city where she went with the child when the riel man foreclosed the mortgage. Yellow fever prevented the French from building the Panam canal, and thousands who had invested their all in canal shares were pauperized.

In Mexico there are thousands who have been made blind and pauperized by smallpox. There are at least two million blind beggars in China, all made blind by smallpox. It is only when epidemics come, when the greater proportion of human lives are threatened, that we realize the meaning of sickness and disease. The ramifications of disease are so complex and far reaching we can but have a hazy idea of what disease means.

It is curious to note that, because of our stupidity, one's very industry may bring poverty. This is illustrated by the occupational diseases. Until very recently society permitted greed to force phossy jaw on workmen who afterward, in many instances, became paupers. To rear and protect industries, one product of which is poverty, is a queer condition. The prevention of phossy jaw will certainly also prevent all the poverty which might come from it.

Cigarmakers, printers and tailors, are especially afflicted with tuberculosis; and on the pauper records appear the names of hundreds who have followed these occupations. A proprietor who does not surround his employees with the best conditions of health is a breeder of disease, poverty and crime.

Feeble-mindedness is a disease condition and produces a world of poverty. There is no cure for feeble-mindedness; it may only be prevented; and there are only two rational methods for its prevention, neither of which society will adopt. And so it happens, as we "blunder on through love and hunger," that the highest services of medical science are rejected, prevention is disregarded and disease follows civilization with its ever lengthening train of degeneracy, defectiveness, delinquency and dependency.

TO THROW THE BULL.

At Washington there is considerable discussion of diplomatic circles as the result of the recent address on the violation of Belgium's neutrality delivered by Theodore Marburg, former United States Minister to Belgium. "The only road to peace," he said, "is by overthrowing German militarism. To protect this country from foreign attack it is necessary to change existing conditions. The number of students at West Point and Annapolis should be doubled, a large navy established and the militia of the country drilled into a state of preparedness. Failure to take this latter precaution found England wholly unprepared, and it is a mistake that country now realizes having made."

"BOURBON FATALITY" OF NEVER LEARNING ANYTHING

No one outside the Democratic party and the scattered remnants of the Progressive organization doubts the return to power of the Republican party in 1916. This confidence is based upon the results of the late election. It is not, however, wholly so based. The conditions making for the repudiation of the Democrats remain and will be intensified with the passage of the months. They have the bourbon fatality of never learning anything. They have doomed themselves to be condemned by the people because they have condemned the people to suffer the infliction of partisan legislation that was conceived and effected without regard for national conditions or national needs.—Baltimore American.

MAY THE LORD BLESS OLD IRELAND.

Sir James M. Barrie, the Scotch author, is quoted as saying that "Ireland has more men enlisted in the British army, compared to percentage of population, than England or Scotland." Surely that is nothing to excite wonder. An Irishman always loves a fight and wants in whenever and wherever there is one in progress. Ireland won her long battle for home rule last week, but hardly had time to give its successful conclusion more than a cheer, so busy was she helping England fight the common enemy. The present war will leave the English and Irish loving each other. That much is sure to be gained by Great Britain out of the great conflict.—Chillicothe (O.) Gazette.

THE AWFUL MESS OF TOO MANY LAWS.

The country as a whole, and almost every state in it, suffers from too much lawmaking. Senator Root told the American Bar Association last month that, in the five years from 1909 to 1913 inclusive, Congress and the state legislatures passed 62,014 laws. No one knows how many thousands and scores of thousands of laws were in force before 1909, but the 62,014 new ones repealed many of those previously in force, and amended many more, with no end of resulting confusion. Relatively few of the laws are vicious enough to work direct harm, but thousands of them work harm indirectly, for they are unnecessary, inconsistent, and impossible to enforce.—Youth's Companion.

FOOLISH PHILOSOPHY.

Elections are worth all they cost when the right candidates are defeated.

Guess holding up President Wilson's hands isn't going to become a national sport.

The fact that justice is blindfolded may account for some of her hard falls.

Most swindlers are successful because of the victims' desire to get the best of the other fellow.

When a young woman shows a deep interest in a rich old man it's a sign that she can make him believe it's the real thing.

The average man thinks he knows a woman when he asks her to face the parson with him, but a few weeks later he may discover his mistake.

THE SILENT DRAMA.

Father—"Mary, what time did that young man leave last night? I didn't hear him say good-night."
 Mary—"No, father. He doesn't say it."

ONE ON THE BOSS.

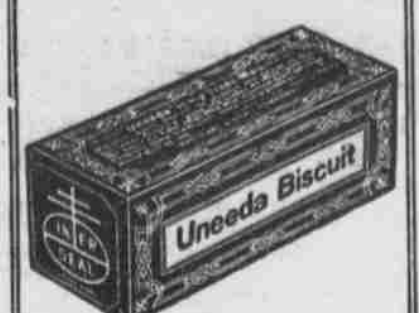

Boss—"Are you the boss in this office?"
 Clerk (seated)—"N—N—no, sir."
 Boss—"Well, then, don't act like a driving idiot."

TOO MUCH FOR MOTHER.

"We are going to give up having Johnny get an education."
 "For what reason?"
 "Well, we can't get him sterilized every morning in time to go to school!"—Puck.

"The happiest wife," a recent English woman writer is quoted as saying, "is not always the one who marries the best man, but the one who makes the best of the man she marries."

SERENITY AND THE WOMAN.

(Blanche Bencon.)

There is a beauty secret not found in cosmetics and which does not abide in the perfumed parlors of beauty doctors. It is a secret which any woman may possess and its magic effect is felt both by its possessor and her friend.

This secret is merely the serenity which comes from relaxation and repose.

The serene woman always appears to advantage.

There is a culture in a serenity of manner which makes the woman who possesses it seem to have generations of breeding behind her. The poise in itself is a personal beauty. There is a suggestion of reserve, intellectual strength more impressive than the uneasiness of a nervous, flighty woman who feels that her tongue or her body must be in motion to let the world know she is in it.

Horace Fletcher says, in substance: "Anger is rank poison."

Women do not realize that a nervous fury is real death to tissues. It is the breaking of a globe of fluid poison which is in the end fatal. At the same time the wear and tear from a nervous temperament will leave the marks of strain on complexion and figure which no creams or lotions can remove.

Try to grow old gracefully and beautifully and learn to take things easily. Serenity is more beautiful than rouge and relaxation more body building than massage.

WE ALL KNOW HIM.

(Fleming Gazette.)

Here's what a newspaper has to contend with when it grants credit: A reader in Florida declines to pay $3 subscription due on his paper because he says when he subscribed he only paid $1 down and he thinks the paper should have been discontinued at the end of the year paid for. Yet when he left Fleming county he had his mail to follow him. He took the paper each week and read it, received several bills in the meantime and consigned them to the waste basket, and only when suit is threatened does he discover that he no longer wants the paper. Yet he's a member of the church and is supposed to be a man who would pay his debts. Of course, he is legally bound for this $3, but how are you going to make it off him?

Women are such natural-born hammer wielders that it seems strange that there are not more female hammersmiths and boiler makers.

FORECAST FOR YEAR 1915
MADE BY PROPHET MARSH

The planets indicate the year 1915 will be the most prosperous year known in the history of the country. Great wave of prosperity throughout the United States; plenty of labor for the laboring classes; better conditions for the poorer classes. Peace will reign throughout the world.

The European war will end during the early months of the year, not later than April, with satisfactory results to all nations.

The weather conditions during the year throughout the United States indicate an early winter, an early spring, pleasant summer and late fall. Cold waves, great amount of snow and sleet, forming blizzards covering the western, northern and northwestern states, the middle west and the lake regions, blocking traffic. Sleet, snow and rain with icy gales over the North Atlantic and New England states and their coasts, impeding traffic. Heavy sleet, snow, blizzards over the states of New York, New England, New Jersey and Maryland.

Heavy snow storms, cold waves, throughout western Pennsylvania and the Allegheny Mountain regions, impeding traffic.

At times heavy rains, turning to sudden cold waves and in many places snow over the south during January, February and December.

Month of March will bring many sudden changes. Rain, snow and sleet and sudden changing temperatures during the forepart of the month, causing high stages of water in all streams, beginning March 16 and continuing thereafter; heavy rains at times alternating to rain and snow, causing the heavy snows in the Allegheny Mountains to melt, causing flood of great magnitude at Pittsburgh, covering western Pennsylvania, over the entire Ohio Valley and along the rivers at Dayton, Hamilton and Chillicothe, O. Much damage by water throughout Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

April will bring an equal amount of showers and sunshine with occasional storms.

May and June will give us some pleasant weather with occasional severe thunder and wind storms.

July and August heat waves relieved at times by tornado winds and damaging thunderstorms. There will be good rains during June, July and August, being well scattered throughout the country.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES
 Kidney Diseases Cause Many Aches and Pains of Maysville People.
 As one weak link weakens a chain, so may weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.
 Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and generally when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers.
 Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills frequently come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards dropsy, gravel or fatal Bright's disease. When the kidneys fail there is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.
 Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys. Maysville testimony is proof of their effectiveness.
 Mrs. Annie McClellan, 541 W. Second St., Maysville, Ky., says: "I was often dizzy and nervous and my head ached. I had pain in my back and my kidneys were weak. Doan's Kidney Pills stopped the complaint immediately and made me well and strong."
 Mrs. McClellan is only one of many Maysville people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you, don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. McClellan had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores.
